

Local Golf Course
Nominated “Best New Course in Ontario”
by Fairways Magazine

Score one for the little guy: a local 9-holer has been awarded a nomination for “Best New Course in Ontario” by Fairways Magazine.

The Links at Monck’s Landing Golf Club, located just outside Norland, richly deserves its nomination according to Fairways Publisher Peter Mumford. “It’s an engaging layout,” Mumford said, “one that offers cottagers in the Kawartha region a chance to experience authentic links style golf.”

Ontario Golf’s Robert Thompson adds, “it’s a pretty sporty little course that is more akin to Tarandowah than it is to most cottage golf,” while Ian Cruickshank of The Toronto Star calls Monck’s Landing, “a testing Scottish style layout”.

“We’re absolutely thrilled with the nomination,” says owner Scott Kuschnereit. “I like to think that we’ve been able to create a pretty fair approximation of golf in Scotland or Ireland, and this recognition from the Ontario golf industry is validation. We couldn’t be happier.”

Monck’s Landing is a challenging 3081 yard, par 35 inland links layout that features rumpled, rolling fairways framed by fields of wind-swept fescue, greens starkly silhouetted against the horizon, and deep railway-tie pot bunkers to punish wayward shots. The course is located 5 minutes north of Norland, west off of Hwy. 35 at 155 Hilton’s Point Road.

“We’re up against some pretty stiff competition”, Kuschnereit notes, “and I believe that a 9 hole course has never won this award, but, hey, Barrett Jackman won the Calder Trophy back in 2003 so you never know!”
